

PAT Certification

Whilst PAT is not a requirement in law it is good practice, however standard annual testing falls significantly short of ensuring the safety of items used often and in harsh environments, therefore all equipment including but not limited to cabling, fixtures, control systems and audio systems owned by Lightfantastic (eventtechnical.co.uk) are tested at each use, or weekly. to a standard higher than that requested by the IET code of practice and standard PAT requirements.

Our equipment carries unique identifiers but do not carry 'PASS' stickers. Items failing on safety or cosmetic grounds are scrapped or repaired before being returned to service.

We do not use any hired in equipment from third parties and it is therefore assumed that all equipment used is owned entirely by us.

Our engineers carry PAT machines which enable spot testing of our own equipment and enable us to test other providers equipment should issues arise where that equipment could cause harm or directly effect our own.

PAT machines are calibrated at least annually.
